NEW ORLEANS – Georgia Southern football head coach Chad Lunsford, kicker Tyler Bass and cornerback Kindle Vildor are in New Orleans representing the Eagles at the annual Sun Belt Conference Football Media Day which takes place Monday at the Mercedes-Benz Superdome.

After arriving earlier today via private plane, Coach Lunsford and his wife Tippy took the party out to lunch in New Orleans while other members of the group headed to the hotel for Sun Belt meetings. Later in the evening, the players got a taste of the town, sampling some local food and hospitality at the conference's Fais-Do-Do party at Mardi Gras World's Grand Oaks Mansion. Everyone was treated to famous Louisiana seafood and an authentic Zydeco music experience to officially start the weekend. The players hung out with each other, getting to know each other off the field in a relaxed setting. The Sun Belt did a great job with the event, setting the tone for the rest of the visit.

The real action begins Monday as the three will head to the Dome for the annual media day. Georgia Southern's busy schedule begins at 8:05 a.m. (CT) and packed throughout the morning and into the afternoon. Additionally, all three will be on Georgia Southern's Facebook Page (Facebook.com/GSAthletics) for a live chat with Eagle Nation.
